MEMORANDUM OF TELEPHONE CONVERSATION

SUBJECT: Telephone Conversation with Prime Minister
Felipe Gonzalez of Spain (U)

PARTICIPANTS: The President
Prime Minister Felipe Gonzalez
Interpreter: Barbara Phillips
Notetaker: Adrian Basora (U)

DATE, TIME January 4, 3:20 - 3:35pm EST
AND PLACE: The Oval Office

The President telephoned Prime Minister Felipe Gonzalez of Spain concerning the Panama situation. (U)

President: How are you? (U)

PM Gonzalez: Fine. I just returned from four days of vacation.
(U)

President: I know that because I had tried to call you earlier in the week to wish you a happy new year. (U)

PM Gonzalez: The same to you and to Mrs. Bush. (U)

President: Do you have a few minutes to discuss Panama? (S)

PM Gonzalez: Yes, I have been following the situation closely.
(S)

President: We have moved forward on all of the fronts that we discussed 10 days ago. Civil authority has been reestablished and certified by the electoral commission. A significant number of PDF officers have been reincorporated and the new Panamanian security forces are maintaining law and order. And, on the point you so strongly made, we have provided humanitarian aid, especially medical assistance. We are pleased to have Noriega in custody. He will be given a fair trial and treated as innocent until proven guilty. I called the Pope today to thank him for the magnificent work of the Vatican and to single out Monsignor Laboa who, I understand, is a Spaniard. (S)

PM Gonzalez: Yes, yes, he is a Spaniard. (S)

President: I just met with Colin Powell who is on his way to Panama. His mission is to establish a timetable for the prompt return of U.S. forces. I have assured the new government that we have every intention of carrying out the Panama Canal Treaty. We've just had an economic mission in Panama looking into their problems and we will be making as generous as possible an effort to solve them. The process has already begun with the lifting of U.S. economic sanctions. I realize that both I and the U.S. Government have much diplomacy to do in Central America and Latin American, because of the past history of use of force. But given the almost euphoric reaction of the Panamanian people, this task should be made somewhat easier. I value your judgment and want to solicit your help in this effort. I would consider it a personal favor if you would keep in touch and give me your views. That is my message. I would be happy to discuss any reaction you have now, or to hear your thoughts later after further reflection. (S)

PM Gonzalez: Thanks for your words. There is a need to normalize the situation in Panama, and we want to help. There are 20,000 Spanish citizens in Panama, and Spain is, therefore, engaged. I think the climate will improve as normalization proceeds, but I will reflect further and give you my comments, perhaps in a written note. (S)

President: As I have said, the Latin Americans put you and Spain on a pedestal. I hope that when you talk to Latin American leaders, you will help to make it clear that the U.S. intervened for two reasons: to restore democracy and to protect U.S. lives. I am not sure that the latter point is fully understood by most Latin Americans. (S)

PM Gonzalez: Yes, I will be talking with some Latin American leaders. (S)

President: Adios. (U)

PM Minister: Thank you. (U)

MEMORANDUM FOR BRENT SCOWCROFT

THROUGH: ROBERT D. BLACKWILL RB
FROM: PHILIP D. ZELIKOW PZ
SUBJECT: Schedule Proposal for U.K. Foreign Secretary
Douglas Hurd

British Foreign Secretary Douglas Hurd will make his first official visit to Washington on January 29. Hurd will meet with Secretary Baker and call on key members of Congress and Secretary Cheney. He has also requested a meeting with the Vice President.

We believe a meeting will allow the President to demonstrate the value we continue to place on strong Anglo-American ties and to followup on the issues he raised with Prime Minister Thatcher at Camp David. It would be the President's first opportunity to talk with the new U.K. Foreign Secretary (Hurd was not at Camp David).

British Foreign Secretary Douglas Hurd will make his first official visit to Washington on January 29. Hurd will meet with Secretary Baker from 11:30 - 1:00. In addition, we expect that he will call on key members of Congress and Secretary Cheney. A request for a meeting with the Vice President has also been forwarded.

FROM: PHILIP ZELIKOW^{PZ}
SUBJECT: Invitation to Attend Ebenhausen Conference on
"Future Tasks of the Alliance," March 9-11, 1990

NATO, in conjunction with the Stiftung Wissenschaft und Politik (SWP), is sponsoring a second annual informal review of the future tasks of the Alliance. Manfred Woerner, and Michael Sturmer of the SWP, have asked you to come to this private, off the record, meeting drawing on individuals both in and out of government.

You have already agreed to go to Germany for the Wehrkunde conference in February, and we do not think you need to attend this conference as well. Bob Blackwill has also been invited to Ebenhausen and intends to go if the workload allows.

Heather Wilson concurs.

Dear Manfred:

Thank you for your invitation to attend the conference being organized in Ebenhausen for March 9-11 on the future tasks of the Alliance. The conference last year produced ideas that were very helpful to general understanding of this vital topic.

Unfortunately, my schedule here in Washington precludes my attendance at the conference this year. However, I know you have invited Bob Blackwill and he intends to join you. Please accept my best wishes for another successful and productive meeting.

Dear General Scowcroft,

Last February 17-19 the Stiftung Wissenschaft und Politik in Ebenhausen organized - with the support from myself and the Secretariat - a conference on "Future Tasks of the Alliance" that proved to be very instrumental during preparations for the NATO Summit and beyond.

Given the dramatic changes throughout Eastern Europe and the Soviet Union and the profound implications they may have for European security and the future role of the Alliance I welcome that the SWP is prepared to repeat this most valuable experience.

I would very much like to draw your attention to the enclosed invitation by Professor Stürmer to participate in a conference at Ebenhausen next March 9-11. The conference enjoys my full support. I plan to attend the proceedings in their entirety and look forward to a rich and fruitful debate. I know that you would make a very special contribution to this conference and I would be grateful if you could join me in accepting Professor Stürmer's invitation.

Yours sincerely,

Dear General Scowcroft

After consultation with the Secretary General of NATO, Dr. Manfred Woerner, the Stiftung Wissenschaft und Politik proposes to arrange a second informal review on "Future Tasks of the Alliance". We would suggest to hold it on March 9 (starting late afternoon) to March 11 (ending mid-afternoon) in Ebenhausen. I would like to invite you to this meeting. The review will be private, and off the record. Enclosed, please find the conference outline, a tentative list of invitees, and a return form.

We will provide you with a more elaborate agenda before long. Uwe Nerlich will prepare a framework paper which we intend to distribute in due time along with the report on the previous meeting (to those who have not already received it).

As you will see from the enclosed letter, Dr. Woerner and several of his principal collaborators intend to participate.

In Ebenhausen you will be the Stiftung's guest. We assume that government officials will be able to find travel support for themselves (and, where appropriate, their accompanying staff). For non-officials who might need support we envisage to provide reimbursement.

We do hope that you will be able to attend the review conference which we expect to take place at a most appropriate point in time.

Yours faithfully
M. Stürmer

Second informal NATO Review on Future Tasks of the Atlantic Alliance Ebenhausen, March 19 - 21, 1990

1. Entering the 1990s, the Atlantic Alliance is facing a variety of unprecedented challenges and opportunities. Forty years after the Alliance was founded and a little more than twenty years after it redefined both its basic political objectives (Harmel Report) and its military strategy (MC 14/3), political restructuring in the Soviet Union, upheaval in most of Eastern Europe and change in East-West relations tend to bring longstanding objectives within reach. However, the political impact of these changes, most noticeably in Germany, reminds us that the Atlantic Alliance has always had a number of political functions in addition to coping with WTO military power and managing East-West detente. The Report of the Three Wise Men (1957) and the Harmel Study (1967) produced unambiguous evidence that the Alliance also was meant to provide a political balance within the West: The mediating role of the U.S., the resulting absence of hegemonial instincts within Western Europe, the exercise of West German restraint institutionalized through NATO, the cooperative control of West Germany that allowed Four-Power responsibilities to be in the interest of all without being displayed as an architectural feature, and the reassurance all these factors together provided to the Soviet Union and Eastern Europe all are important aspects of how the Alliance functioned in political terms.
2. The Summit Declaration of May 29, 1989, and the reinforcement provided through the Ministerial Communique of December 16, 1989, in the light of recent momentuous changes in the East, provide a broad framework for the continuation and reformulation of these functions. However, it is too early to tell whether the member states of the Alliance will be able to develop and to agree on policies in the service of these functions. Many in the West want the Alliance to become "more political". This means either a reduced military role or an expansion of its political responsibilities. The former tends to ignore that the Alliance will continue to face formidable Soviet military capabilities and that it does so in highly unstable and precarious circumstances. Moreover, current political drives in some member states may unilaterally worsen strategic relations precisely at a point in time where CFE and START are expected to stabilize force relations under parity regimes. Paradoxically it needed the Soviet Union to remind many within the Alliance of NATO's stabilizing role. Only a few months after Gorbachev had repeated the traditional Soviet call for the abolition of NATO and WTO, Shevardnadze visited the NATO General Secretariat and the Council thus recognizing the rank and the role of the very institution the Kremlin for so long had sought to deprive of political support in the West through what may well have been the most persistent political campaign in history.

3. Both on a military and a political level the Alliance needs a reappraisal of mid- and long-term objectives. Policies will have to be designed and instruments will have to be developed that serve the process eventually leading to a general European settlement acceptable to all parties concerned. In past decades long-term goals tended to be non-operational and therefore could be kept sufficiently vague to facilitate automatic consensus. In the present situation this has changed. On various levels of European development coping with mid-term problems requires some definition of and agreement on long-term goals with regard to an eventual overall European architecture and thus to the role key countries intend to play in the process. A mere process-orientation as embodied in the Harmel Report is no longer good enough. This is all the more crucial for the Alliance as without this reapproval of ends and means its very rationale could lose its political base.
4. In these circumstances informal dialogue can provide results that straightforward formal consultation will fail to produce. The first informal NATO Review on Future Tasks of the Alliance in February 1989 in Ebenhausen certainly brought home the potential usefulness of such endeavors - not least in the way the findings were reflected in the Summit Declaration.
We have therefore concluded that a second such review would be most timely. It will be held March 19 - 21, 1990, again in Ebenhausen.

5. You will receive an elaborate agenda and a framework paper for that review in due time. At this stage some of the major terms can be named:
 - an assessment of the scenarios, risks, instabilities and opportunities the Alliance is facing as a result of the momentuous changes in Eastern Europe and the Soviet Union;
 - the inter-dependence between the four levels of development toward a future European security arrangement: the intra-German level, the EC-level, the Alliance level and the CSCE level;
 - possible political futures for the WTO and their implications for the Atlantic Alliance;
 - the adaption of NATO force structures and military strategy to changing military challenges in and around Europe;
 - the comparison of the pending CFE agreement that will tend to stabilize NATO (and the WTO for that matter) to subsequent CFE agreements that may have a wide range of possible political and military implications - some of a potentially undesirable nature;
 - the evolution of political functions within the Alliance and, more broadly, within the West European - North American political fabric and its relevance for a future European security arrangement.
6. The composition of the conference group will be more or less the same as for the first review, i.e. government officials and military leaders from member states and from political and military headquarters of the Alliance plus members of the European Strategy Group (ESG) and of their American counterparts. However, in view of the above agenda we thought it important also to invite key officials from the EC and from Japan.

MEMORANDUM FOR ROBERT M. GATES

THROUGH: ROBERT D. BLACKWILL/ARNOLD KANTER AK

FROM: ROBERT L. HUTCHINGS RLH

SUBJECT: Luncheon Invitation for Mrs. Bush

Susan Porter Rose asked for your comments on an invitation for Mrs. Bush from Mrs. Alma Gildenhorn, wife of our Ambassador to Switzerland, to attend a February 6 luncheon here in honor of Mrs. Vera Villiger, wife of the Swiss Defense Minister. Minister Villiger will be here at the invitation of Secretary Cheney and has also requested meetings with General Scowcroft and with Deputy Secretary Eagleburger.

Your reply at Tab I notes that there are no compelling national security interests at stake.

Philip Zelikow PZ concurs.

MEMORANDUM FOR SUSAN PORTER ROSE

FROM: ROBERT M. GATES

SUBJECT: Luncheon Invitation for the First Lady

You asked for comments on the invitation for Mrs. Bush from Mrs. Alma Gildenhorn, wife of our Ambassador to Switzerland, to attend a luncheon in honor of Mrs. Vera Villiger, wife of the Swiss Defense Minister.

The Defense Minister will be here, in his first visit to the U.S. in his new capacity, at the invitation of Secretary Cheney. Minister Villiger has gained a positive reputation as an intelligent and forceful proponent of a strong Swiss defense posture and close ties to the U.S.

There are no compelling foreign policy interests at stake, however, and we recommend that the First Lady decide on social rather than national security grounds whether to attend the luncheon.

Mrs. Susan Porter Rose
Chief of Staff
Office of Mrs. Bush
The White House
Washington, D.C. 20500

Dear Susan:

We are firmly settled in Switzerland, and it is wonderful to represent the United States and the President. The Swiss are warm and hospitable to us, and the relations between our countries are excellent. We hope this letter finds you well and enjoying the challenges of your important job.

We were in Washington last week-end for the Kennedy Center Honors. Mrs. Bush conducted the reception with great aplomb, and she gave a touching and meaningful tribute to the honorees. It was so good to be at home and a special pleasure to see Mrs. Bush.

In February, Joe and I will accompany Swiss

Federal Councilor for Defense (Swiss Defence Minister) Kaspar Villiger and his wife, Vera, to the United States. In Washington, Mr. Villiger will be the official guest of Secretary Cheney on February 5 and 6.

I am planning a luncheon at my home on Tuesday, February 6 for Mrs. Villiger and would like very much to invite Mrs. Bush as our special guest.

Ambassador Gildenhorn is placing emphasis on Defense Minister Villiger's visit as he will most likely be the only Swiss Councilor to officially visit our country in 1990. I have been told that there are a significant number of important issues underway between our two countries which stand to be positively influenced by the Villiger visit. In addition, Mr. Villiger is now in the Federal Council and by the process of rotation, he will serve as President of Switzerland in the future.

All of the above considered, it would be a great pleasure and honor to welcome Mrs. Bush to my home. I would hope, more than anything, that it would be a good "afternoon out" with friends who love and admire her.

Thank you very much for considering this invitation. I look forward to hearing from you at your earliest convenience.

We send you and your family our good wishes for the holiday season and the new year.

Joe joins me in sending warmest regards,

Sincerely,
